What Is The Manager Start Line?

This 12-module online program is designed to help new people managers transition into their next level of leadership. It is built upon the understanding that people managers first need to learn how to manage themselves before they can be effective in managing their team. From there, they can drive results, develop their people, and achieve corporate goals with ease and efficiency.

Through the use of self-reflection exercises, animations, short videos, scenario-based learning, and additional interactive elearning formats this work enables managers to transform into leaders.
